The president and Mrs. Cleveland, despite the continuous round of star spangled hospi-tality which they have experienced, are in excellent health and spirits.

The reception over, the president hurried to his carriage through a side entrance, and was driven to the excursion boat "Citp of Baton Rouge," lying at the foot of Chestnut street. At the same time Mrs. Cleveland left the Lindell house, and was aboard the boat a few minutes later than the president, and the vessel steamed down the river for a trip to Jefferson barracks, The saloon of the vessel was handsomely decorated with flowers. These were between three and four hundred invited guests on board, including members of the Iroquois club of Chicago and a number of Graud Army men. The trip was gotteu up as a relief for the president and Mrs. Cleveland from the almost constant round of receptions and other more or less exacting festivities ashore, and in this regard was a decided success.

Mississippi river scenery, though not as inspiring as scenery has an absorbing interest of its own for strangers, and can nowhere be seen so well as from the deck of a steamer. The boat ran down stream about eight miles, turned and reached the landing again at half past 12. An accompanying excursion boat fired artilery salutes, while tugs, steamers and loometives on both shores did their best with steam whistles to make the trip interesting, and they succeeded. At the turning point stands immense rolling mill establishments, which also form a focus of scries of railway tracks. A tug on the river responded in kind. A locomotive on the east bank caught the cry, and two or three others up and down the stream echoed it; then steamers at the landing and finally a dozen or more whistles of the mills opened their throats, and "cock-a-doo-dle-doo," hoarse, shrill and raspy, in every tone of the gamet, came from the four quarters of the compass. It was entertaining, but a few minutes of this concert was enough.

The afternoon was uneventful. The president's party were escorted in carriages from the boat to the fair grounds, where they became the guests of the fair association, and lunched with a party of thirty or forty ladies and gentlemen at the club house. The lunch over, they proceeded to the grand stand and witnessed some trotting races and returned to the hotel for dinner.

THE VEILED PROPHET.

In the evening the president and Mrs. Cleveland witnessed the grand street pagaent of the "Veiled Prophet," illustrating by twenty-two floats some of the events of Biblical history, beginning with the dawn of history, the expulsion of Lucifer, Egyptian captivity, scenes of Exodus, Philistines, Prophets, Events of Daniel, Jonas and Josiah's life, war scenes and ending with the famous Belshzza; feast. The procession moved without interruption and was about an hour in passing. Throughout its length it was illuminated with colored lights besides the glare from a hundred thousand gas jets, especially erected for the carnival. Crowds along the line of march were very deuse. From Fourth to Sixteenth street, along Washington avenue, was a mass of humanity, leaying scarcely room euough for the floats to pass by. The police were unable to control the people, but the moving column kept open the way.

At 9 o'clock the last car had passed by the Lindell hotel balcony, and the president and Mrs. Cleveland were immediately conveyed to the Merchants' exchange building, in the great hall of which was to be held the Veiled Prophets' ball. They were received in the library room, which had been especially and elegantly furnished for the occasion. After short recess they were escorted to the ball room Frank Galenne, president of the exchange and Mayor Francis leading, and President and Mrs. Gleveland immediately behind, followed by members of the reception committee and thoir wives. A trumpet call signalled their approach and they marched around the hall to the music, "Hail to the Chief."

General Manager Chappell, of the road, goes on the president's train. A special timecard has been printed bearing instructions to all passenger trains to take sidings ten minutes and all freight trains fifteen minutes before the time for the passage of the presidential train. The timecard is a little gemprint, bearing, in addition to its ornamental typography, handsome lithographs of President and Mrs. Cleveland.

A Talk With Mr. Powderly About the Knights.

Minneapolis. Minn., October 4.—The Knights of Labor convention was called to order at eleven o'clock, but as the credentials of delegates had not been examined, adjournment was taken until evening. In an interview today, Mr. Powderly said:

"It is no doubt true that our numbers are fewer than they once were, but we understand each other better. There were a great many who came into the order through curiosity and the excitement of the times, but they did not have the interests of the movement at heart, and have dropped out."

At 3 o'clock the general assembly Knights of Labor was again called to order, and the report of the committee on credentials received. Some 135 delegates were favorably reported, while a few were without indorsement of the committee. The principal case was that of J. R. Buchanan, a Denver "kicker." Over his admission there was a long and warm discussion, which was protracted till 7 o'clock, when the convention adjourned till 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. Buchanan's chances for admission are regarded as very poor. It is understood that his case, as well as several others, were given to the committee on credentials for further consideration during the night. In pursuance of these instructions, the committee held a long session this evening, but kept their deliberations strictly secret.

is likely to come before the general assembly is a scheme to unite the Knights of Laborjand the national farmers' alliance, now in session in Minneapolis, into one organization. The plan now proposed is to make the farmers' alliance a national trade body, with the title of the National District assembly.

"This would make a team," said a leading delegate today, "which would move the earth. With the farmers with us, we could do what we would toward the accomplishment of the purposes of both bodies."

General Secretary Charles H. Litchman, who arrived today, said in an interview:

"The organization was never so strong, both financially and otherwise, as it is today, and the organization is now on a sound business basis. Delinquents have all been weeded out within the last year, and every man represented in the organization today is by right entitled to membership. That is the principle to work on. The business of order can be successfully conducted in no other way."

There are several ladies among the delegates, but there is only one who is a general officer. This is Mrs. Lenora M. Bavoy, of Amsterdam, N. Y., general investigator of the condition of women and children.

THE VESSEL WENT DOWN.

The Schooner Havana Sinks-Three Persons

St. Joseph. Mich., October 4.—The schooner Havana, owned by Captain A. P. Read, of Kenosha, was sighted off this port yesterday morning, flying signals of distress. The vessel was in a sinking condition, and the crew were unable to keep her head clear of water. Captain John Curran concluded to beach her, if possible, and headed for the shore. At nine o'clock, when she was about three-fourths of a mile off the shore, the vessel went down and the crew was seen to climb into the rigging. There were seven men aboard. Captain Curthe crew was seen to climb into the rigging. There were seven men aboard. Captain Curran, Stewart John Morris, and a sailor named Joseph Clint, climbed into the main rigging, and others into the fore rigging; as the vessel gave a heavy lurch the mainmast crashed overboard, carrying three men into the breakers.

They struck out for shore, and when last seen were breasting the ways.

They struck out for shore, and when last seen were breasting the waves. They were probably drowned. The remaining four men clung to the cross-trees for nearly three hours, when a tug came to their rescue. It took nearly three-quarters of an hour to get the men from their perilous position. The mate had his arm broken before the vessel sank, but had his arm broken before the vessel sank, but clung to the mast with the grit of a hero. The captain and crew of the tug deserve much praise for the rescue, as there was a terrible sea running, and the little tug was tossed about so that those who watched it from shore thought she would surely founder. The Havana had a cargo of six hundred tons of ore. She has about six miles north of this port, in 10 to 12 fathoms.

St. Ignace, Mich., October 4.—The Canadian passenger propeller California, which left Chicago Saturday night, was struck by yesterday's gale on Lake Michigan. Her hold soon filled and extinguished the fire, and about one o'clock, when off St. Helena, she broke up and went down. Seven of the crew reached Point Les Barbes in a life boat in an almost lifeless condition, and those not accounted for are Les Barbes in a life boat in an almost lifeless condition, and those not accounted for are Captain John Trowk, the first mate, purser, first engineer, second engineer, one fireman, cook, cabin boy and two lady passengers. THE CHOLERA.

Four More Cases on Swinburne Island-

Sanitary Regulations.

New York, October 4.—The quarantine authorities report today four additional cases among the cholera-stricken patients on Swinburne island. The names of two of these latest victims are Ufernia Del Giorno, aged twenty-seven years, and Maria Vicaria, aged four years. This makes a total of fourteen deaths among the passengers taken from the cholera-infested steamship Alesia, on her arrival in this port eleven days ago. There are ten others sick with the disease. Health authorities, however, claim that the condition of the quarantined passengers in Observation hospital at Hoffman island is much improved, and that there is a more hopeful state of affairs during the past twenty-four hours.

The steamship Alesia, which brought the cholera-stricken passengers, today came up from quarantine to her Brooklyn pier.

SALUTING THE VICTOR.

Cheered by the Multitude.

New York, October 4.—The Volunteer left for Marblehead this morning, via Eastriver. From Bay Ridge to the time the vessel got out of reach of hearing, she was made the recipient of salutes of all kind. Yachts off Bay Ridge sent the craft off with a salvo of cannon, while tugs and steamboats tooted after the old-time fashion. A crowd on Brooklyn bridge also joined in hurrahing, which was continued all along East river until the per-less craft had passed almost out of sight and Captain Haff could rest his weary hand, tired from returning the manifold salutes he received. Cheered by the Multitude.

F CHICAGO, October 4.—L. S. Ohner, president F CHICAGO, October 4.—L. S. Ohner, president of the Annesty association, which has charge of petitions to Governor Oglesby in behalf of the condemned anarchists, said yesterday that the work of the association was progressing rapidly. Outside of Chicago there is great demand for petition blanks, and thousands of copies have been sent to many cities and towns in Iowa, Colorado, California, Missouri, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York and other states. The large cities of the United States are expected to contribute ten thousand dollars during the present month. It is, therefore, likely that the period fixed for the purchase of bonds for a sinking fund may be extended a few days, or that Secretary Fairchild may decide to allow the offer to remain indefinitely until the required amount shall have nitely until the required amount shall have been obtained. ATHENS, Ga., October 4.—[Special.]—Tomorrow the state university opens, and a large number of students have arrived. The crowd is larger than last year, and all prospects point to a full session. It is understood that Dr. P. H. Mell will, at the proper time, write a letter to the friends of the Candler bill, urging his objections to the measure of reorginizing the board of trustees. Dr. Mell believes the friends of the bill should get an expression from the present trustees who, from their position and past usefulness, should not be overlooked. The local board here are generally in favor of some reorginization of the board, and it is understood that the friends of the Candler bill will consult with the trustees before the measure is pushed. A pleasant feature of the reopening of the college is the apperance of the university library in charge of Miss Sarah Frierson, the first lady librarian. The library will be open in college hours to students, and all the daily papers in the state are being mailed to the college and will there be on file. The occupants gave them a warm reception, throwing boiling water on their faces and down their backs. When the bailiffs succeeded in smashing in the front door an idiot dashed out of the house and violently attacked them. The crowd,now intensely excited, hissed and cursed the evictors, but was restrained from acts of violence by Father MacFadden. The bailiffs opened holes in the sides of the house and the occupants replied with another torrent of boiling water, the spectators cheering frantically.

Finally the gable, with a part of the roof, fell with a crash. The inmates, cheered by spectators, replied by throwing a volley of stones at the police. The latter, after a desperate effort, succeeded in entering the house and dragging out the tenant's son-in-law, named Gallagher, who had on only his shirt and trousers. Gallagher's wife was also dragged out, and both were carried to the barracks on doors. After the police had left the scene the crowd reinstated the tenants. Mr. O'Brien has sent a telegram announcing that he will visit Gweedore immediately.

And Shows How the Crimes Act is Gaining Strength for the Liberals.

London, October 4.—Speaking to a deputation at Hawarden today, Mr. Gladstone said: Although the liberals sustained a smashing defeat at the last election, the present year was full of signs that the judgment of the nation, when again pronounced, would be far different. The Irish question continued to cast into a deep shade every other question. It was to the interest of the old parties to have the question settled. It would be an unfeigned joy to him if the tories relieved the liberals of the task of solving the problem by presenting to Ireland the measure of justice which she is entitled to receive. Such an event would cast upon him the delightful duty of assisting the tories to attain the righteous and necessary end. [Cheers.]

He did not believe that the end would be long delayed. Little progress would be possible in Fullish and Scatch affairs put!

He did not believe that the end would be long delayed. Little progress would be possible in English and Scotch affairs until the Irish question was brought to a happy consummation. It was that, said he, that had caused the block in the last session of parliament. The fact was that he had not made a single proposal during the whole session. It was not by him, or his friends, that the progress of affairs had been stopped; it was because the government found it necessary to occupy the time of parlioment with miserable and mischievous retrogressive proposals. [Cheers.]

government found it necessary to occupy the time of parlioment with miserable and mischievous retrogressive proposals. [Cheers.]

Referring to the liberal-unionists he said he wouldn't find fault with their conscientious opposition. At the same time their whole conduct was animated by animosity and hostility to Ireland, and they did everything in their power to deprive the liberal party of all influence for gentlemen professing liberalism. [Cheers.] Sympathy with them was the dominant sentiment in his mind. There had always been weak-kneed liberals. The present cabal was not the first one the liberals had formed. The freedom of judgment which prevailed in the liberal party, made it liable to that calamity. Time would show that those who had left the party were egregiously wrong. It was a misnomer to call these men liberal-unionists. There was no unionism in them. Theirs was a policy which tended to destroy the union. It was equally difficult to describe them as liberals while they supported a government of coercion—not coercion to repress crime, but coercion to suppress the freedow of greech.

was a misnomer to call these men liberal-unionists. There was no unionism in them. Theirs was a policy which tended to destroy the union. It was equally difficult to describe them as liberals while they supported a government of coercion—not coercion to repress crime, but coercion to suppress the freedom of speech, public assembly, and even the freedom of the press. He had recently seen indications of police interference with public meetings in London. This resulted from the proceedings of the last session of parliament. [Cries of "hear!" hear!"]

The liberals had warned the people of England that the cause of Ireland was their cause. He had then no idea that the warning would be so soon verified. If reports were true that police had called at midnight at the houses of persons who intended to speak at the London meeting, demanding to know the objects and programme of that meeting, it was a gross outrage. Such action was contrary to the whole spirit of liberty, and violently at variance with the traditions of England. From a mere party point of view, he might say let the government go on. The more offensive these proceedings the sooner would they bring about the Irish question. [Cheers.]

In conclusion, he said he would defer giving fuller expression to his views regarding Ireland until the opening of the autumn campaign at the conference at Nottingham.

SLY SOCIALISTS.

They Hold Secret Conferences Undisturbed by the Police. They Hold Secret Conferences Undisturbed by the Police.

Berlin, October 4.—A secret conference of German socialists, lasting three days, has been held at St. Gall, Switzerland. Eighty delegates were present. The police were completely hoodwinked, and had no knowledge of the meeting until after its adjournment. The socialist leaders Singer and Hasenclever, acted as president at the different sessions. The speakers bitterly denounced the course pursued by the socialist deputies in the reichstag, and a resolution was adopted condemning the opportunist policy of the deputies, under the lead of Betsel and Liebernicht, who were charged with compremising the independence and revolutionary character of the socialistic movement. Reports were read, showing that since the previous conference, the socialists of Germany had spent 170,000 marks, of which 100,000 marks was used for election expenses, and 50,000 marks for defending members who have been prosecuted.

The Mitchellstown Inquiry.

Lendon, October 4.—During the Mitchellstown inquest today, Mr. Barrington caused a scene by openly declaring that the police who had testified, had committed perjury.

Head Constable Brewnrigg declared that he valued the lives of the police more than he did the lives of the rioters. Eight men who were arrested for connection with the killing of Constable Whelehan, at the time of the encounter between the moonlighters and a force of police at Farmer Sexton's house, some time ago, were brought up in the police court today at Ennis, and formally charged with being implicated in the murder. Members of the national league, with bands, escorted the prisoners from jail to the court room. Mr. Cox, and Mr. Conybeare, members of parliament, were present in the court room during the proceedings.

How It is Arranged.

Berlin, October 4.—The Bismarck-Crispi interview resulted in a definite written arrangement between Italy, Germany and Austria. Italy has full power to take independent action on the Mediterranean, and should Italian interests conflict with those of France or Russia, Italy will rely upon the support of Germany and Austria.

He spoke of the doctors during the war, and claimed that, despite the deficiency of drugs and surgical applian es in the south, the southern onegeous compared invorably with those of the north in all departments. He mentioned their great akill and ingenuity in improvising surgical devices, and in the development and use of indigenous plants and medicines. He spoae of the professional courtesy and kindness that existed between tasurgeous of the opposing fires, when farough the fortunes of war they were thrown together or feliinto each others hands. He showed now great though assisting in taking care of soldiers' families and ministering to the needs of the poor.

The great blow inflicted upon the emoluments of the practice by the reason of the abolition of slaveryand the ruin of southbern planters was mentioned.

"Of the southern planters before the war, especially those in the cotion beit," he said, "they were the best and noblest of all the types of men ever known to the world. Take an example of a well-to do southern planter in his cle ann home. A cavalier in deportment, jealous of his honor, generous, frank and general in disposition, free and liberal in the use of his money, hosp, able almost to a fault, charitable to the poor, beloved by his slaves, to whom he was ever kind, he was in all respects a high-tonedigentieman and a true man."

Of the society in that day he remarked: "Whatever may be easi of domestic slavery in the south it society as it then existed, and as iffusirated in our

of civilization ever known in the annuls of history

"Many ot the books in our schools are unirue to history and calculated to give to our children, both of the present and coming generations, false and disparaging views of the patriotism of their fathers and of the cause for which they so nobly struggled.

"The gradual unfolding of the real facts of the so-called rebellion, the true character of our people and the great truits to which I have referred, are beginning to impress the minds of thinking and unprejudiced men, and a sense of returning justice to our section is manifest everywhere, even in the northern section of our union."

After urging the students to be punctual, soler, studious, moral and upright, and disclarating any reflection upon students from the north who were present, he closed with this remark, addressed to such:

"The new south is a part of the American union. In the conclusion of his remarks he presented to the audience the de stal laculty, composed of syren gentlemen of the city, whom he highly complimented for their qualifications for their respective places. They had been setet id, just as overy young man should select his wife, "on their merits." The doctor's frequent withtiesms and happy hits imparted a pleasing and happy flavor. He introduced Dr. Holland, who spoke in behalf of the dental departments, Dr. Holland was very facetious in the opening remarks of his address. He paid a high compliment to the members of the medical faculty, and especially to the press'e at, Dr. T. S. Fowell, alluding in strong terms to his indomitable energy and his great wisdom in the prosecution of great enterprises. He was enthusiastic about the good which Dr. Powell had accomplished for the profession in the south and for Atlanta. A due appreciation he thought, of his efforts would bring a sense of obliged m, especially on the part of cu citizens, and he would only have to ask what he wanted for the accomplishment of his enterprises and it would be granted by our poople, and the institution over which he presides would be cudowed by some great benevolent heart. The concluding remarks of Dr. Holland were instructive and admonitory to the students, being replete with sound seuse and good active.

The exercises were heartly enjoyed by all present.

A TAX LEVY FOR SCHOOL PURPOSES.

The Substitute for the Belt Bill Passes the Routine Work.

The Stone Mountain circuit biff was called The Stone Mountain circuit bill was called up in the senate yesterday by Mr. James. The circuit was established two years ago in order to relieve the pressure on the Atlanta circuit. At the time, the circuit was organized only for two years, and it was necessary for the general assembly to take some action if it desired to continue the circuit. That action was taken general of the circuit should be residents of said circuit

Mr. Butt moved to amend further by striking out the third section of the bill and substituting: "That the present incumbents shall hold office until their successors shall be elected in 1883."

Mr. Butt's idea was that the judge and solicitor of the circuit when elected two years ago, were elected for a term of four years, the constitution declaring that that time should constitute the period of office of such officers. Mr. But said that the state already had a judge and a solicitor, and all that was necessary was to get for them a circuit.

Mr. James opposed the amendment offered by Mr. Lewis, and supported the bill. He declared that to adopt the Lewis amendment would be to make the present incumbents in-clared that to adopt the Lewis amendment would be to make the present incumbents ineligible. The object of the bill was to relieve the Atlanta circuit of some of its business.

Mr. Northeutt opposed the Lewis amendment, on the ground that it would practically prohibit an Atlanta resident from being judge when that city was more interested, perhaps, than any other in the bill. It would be a discrimination. Mr. Butt made a few remarks, saying he favored the bill, but was opposed to disturbing the present incumbents until the expiration of their term of office. They were disturbing the present incumbents until the expiration of their term of office. They were elected for four years, and were entitled to serve their time. Mr. Hawkes opposed the Lewis amendment. The Buttamendment was adopted and the Lewis amendment was lost, and the bill as amended was passed by 24 years to 1 year. So the Stone Mountain circuit is established.

The Mileage Question.
The resolution of Mr. Russell of Clarke to pay mileage to members of the general assembly came up in the senate yesterday for consid-

The finance committee had considered the resolution, and had reported the same to the senate favorably. It had been opposed in committee by several members, but no principly report was made. When, however, texame up yesterday for consideration, Mr. Dean opposed the adoption of the resolution, taking the position that the senate had no right to yet the milestre.

Mr. Dean declared that the session was an adjourned session, a part of the winter session, and mileage had been paid once. If it was not a part of the former session it was an unconstitutional session, for the organic law prohibited annual sessions. He could not support the resolution because he did not think it would be right.

The Discussion on Extra Pay.

The Discussion on Extra Pay. A sort of free and easy debate then ensued being participated in by Senators Butt, James, Hand and Wofford on the one hand, favoring the resolution, and by Senators Northcutt, Lewis and Smith on the other opposing it, Mr. Northcutt earnestly opposed the passage of the resolution. During his remarks he was asked if he had not drawn his pay this session. He replied he had not. He was then asked if he proposed to take it, he said he did, because the replied he had not. He was then asked if he proposed to take it, he said he did, because it was appropriated under the provisions of the constitution. He thought the legislature ought to appropriate money to various institutions, but he did not think it ought to appropriate it Mr. Wofford moved to amend the resolution by adding a clause that would exclude Messrs. Dean and Northcutt from receiving the extra leage. Messrs. Dean and Northcutt both declared that they were perfectly willing to the passage of the amended resolution. The resolution, as amended by Mr. Wofford, was voted down. Mr. Smith, of the sixth, said that by reason of his residence he would probably receive more mileage than any other senator, but he of his residence he would probably receive more mileage than any other senator, but he was opposed to the resolution, and would not support it. He said that last winter he only drew half the mileage he was entitled to, intending to draw the other half at the end of this session. He would proceed to carry out that plan, but if the majority of the senate declared he was entitled to more, while he would not vote for it himself, he thought it was likely that he would draw it.

On the nassage of the resolution the yeas and nays were called, and resulted as follows:

Yeas—Atwood, Frannen, Brautley, Batt, Daniel, Davis, Dejamet, Diworth, Foster, Hamilton, Hand, 17th Higden, Jackson, James, Lewis, Llvingstone, McKany, McCants, McLeod, Pringle, Turnipseed, Wolfoel, Yeas 2.

Nays—Dean, Fover, Hand, (8th), Hawkes, Lamkin Northent, Powell, Ritchie, Robins, Rusk, Smith, 16th, Wright, (38th), Nays 12.

For the Public Schools

The house passed yesterday an important bill providing for direct taxation for public school purposes. It was the finance committee's substitute for Mr. Belt's bill.

Mr. Belt's bill was to levy an additional tax for 1888 of one-tenth of one per cent, which is one mill for school purposes.

The tax levies are: For 1887, general purposes, 2.6 mills; for capitol, .85 of a mill; for sinking fund, .32 of a mill, a total of 3.77 mills. For 1888 general purposes, 2.6 mills; for capitol, .85 of a mill; for sinking fund, .32 of a

Mr. Belt's bill would have made the tax levy for 1888 4 and 57-109 mills. The finance committee thought this too heavy a tax, but as the members of the committee desired to do all that could be prudently done for common school education, they reported a substitute, which levies for 1888 a tax of two-tenths of a mill, so that this tax and the capital tax of 1888 would equal the amount of the capitol tax of 1887, and the total tax of 1887.

The finance committee recognized that this tax (which will only realize about $60,000) is a less amount than is needed for the common schools, but they regard its passage as important because it recognizes:

First The principle of direct taxation for tant because it recognizes:

First. The principal of direct taxation for common school education. rist. The principal of direct axation for common school education.

Second. By referring to the present capitol tax, they bope that succeeding legislatures will increase the amount after the capitol is finished, believing that the taxpayers will be willing to raise each year an amount not less than the amount they have paid in 1887 for building the capitol.

Mr. Veazey—For the relief of W. T. Woodruff, tax collector of fallaferro county.

Mr. Russell of Clarke—Prohibiting the sale of liquor-whithin three miles of Moore's Grove church in Clarke county.

Decisions Rendered Tuesday, October 4th,

Judgment revered

Judgment reversed. Broyles & Johnston, John A. Wimpy, for laintiffs in error. T. P. Westmoreland, for defendant.

Baker vs. Bancroft, executor. Caveat, from Fulton. Wills. Administrators and Executors. Witness. Judgments. Coets. (Before Judge Marshall J. Clarke.)
Bleckley, C. J.—I. One of three subscribing witnesses to a will, being named as sole executor, may propound it for probate in solemn form, and on the trial of a caveat he is a competent witness, under the Code of Georgia, §3854, to prove the execution of the instrument.

2. Not only judgment of probate may be rendered at his instance, but judgment grant ing him letters testamentary.

3. The usual rule is that in a court of law costs are to be paid by the losing party, and not out of the estate or fund in controversy. And this rule applies to the present case, there being no motion to apportion the costs.

Judgment affirmed.

Hillyer & Bro., for plaintiff in error.

No appearance for defendant.

Johnson vs. City of Atlanta. Certiorari, from

Feiron. Criminal Law. Evidence. New Trial. (Betore Judge Richard H. Clark.)
Simmons, J.—There was no error in admitting the testimony of Buchanan to the effect that, on the night when the defendant was charged to have kept liquor for illegal sale, he saw a negro in a closet in the rear portion of the defendant's store, selling whisky, and heard money jingling; and that the negro went back into the closet to wherea small hole opened into the place occupied by defendant.

2. There was sufficient evidence to sustain the inding of the recorder that the defendant was guilty; he acted as both fudge and jury; it was for him to believe or disbelive the witnesses, and this court will not say that he arred; nor was there error in refusing to grant the writ of certiorari.

Judgment affilirmed.

DYSPEPSIA

Causes its victims to be miserable, hopeless, confused, and depressed in mind, very irrita-ble, languid, and drowsy. It is a disease which does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy to throw off the causes and tone up the diges-tive organs till they perform their duties willingly. Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven just the required remedy in hundreds of cases.

"I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla for dyspepsia, from which I have suffered two years, I tried many other medicines, but none proved so satisfactory as Hood's Sarsaparilla." THOMAS COOK, Brush Electric Light Co.,

Sick Headache

"For the past two years I have been afflicted with severe headaches and dyspep-sia. I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and have found great relief. I cheerfully recommend it to all." Mrs. E. F. Annable, New Haven, Conn.

Mrs. Mary C. Smith, Cambridgeport, Mass., was a sufferer from dyspepsia and sick head-ache. She took Hood's Sarsaparilla and found it the best remedy she ever used.

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

A Scaly, Itching, Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twentyeight years ago it would have saved me $2,00.00 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (Psoriasis commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all overmy body and gets under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endiess, and without relief. One thousand collars would not tempt me to have this disease over again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprocy, some ring worm, restriasis, ste. I took . . and .,
Saraparillas over one year and a half, but no cure. I went to two or three doctors and no cure,
I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much.
They have made my skin as clear and free from calce as a baby's. All I used of them was three boxes of CUTICURA, and three bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $30.00 you would have had the money. I looked like the picture in your book of Psoriasis

NEGRO FARM LABOR.

Some Instances of a Thrifty Disposition.

THE BEST LABOR TO BE HAD SOUTH. Talks With Some Who Have Tried it-Bustlan's Gut—A Queer Cave In—A Heavy Suit—Took Poison—Other News.

Macon, Ga., October 4 .- [Special.]-"Yes, I have had a great deal of experience with negro labor, and I cannot say that it has been altogether satisfactory," said a well-known merchant farmer a few days ago, in a talk with a Constitution reporter. "Yet there are several instances that I can record where with a Constitution reporter. "Yet there are several instances that I can record where I was most agreeably surprised at the honesty and thrifty disposition of the country darky.

"Some years ago, I had to take an old mule for debt, at about forty dollars, and having no earthly use for it, I told one of my tenants I would sell it to him for a thousand pounds of lint tocton. He studied awhile and decided he would buy the mule, and he gave his notes and carried the mule off. Well, I had no idea of getting anything out of him, but at the end of the year that negro came and took up his notes and paid for the mule.

"He set in to work again, and next spring I got hold of another mule, and I sent him word that he could have that one also. He came and bought it on a credit, and at the end of the year he was as puctual as before. Somehow he got confidence in himself, and the third year he decided to try it on his own hook. He traded these two mules for a couple of Texas ponies, and accepted the effer of a neighboring farmer to clear up and cultivate some old fields for all he could make the first year.

"I thought then he was busted, but he came out with several hundrod dollars ahead that year, and he decided to invest in a place of his own. The place cost eight hundred dollars, and he had three hundred, so he came to me to help him.

"I knew the land was worth the other five hundred, if he would sign a mortgage to the property. Along toward the end of the year he came in one day just before the notes were due, and hung a ound the store, looked at first one thing and then another, as negroes will do, and I kept watching him, feeling certain, that he would come up with a poor mouth about short crops, and so on.

"After awhile he came into the office and said: 'Boss, I come to pay dem notes,' and he pulled out a roil of money and counted out the sum that was due the end of that year, and paid it. Well, sir, I was most agreeably astonished. At the end of the second year the other note was paid, and now that negro owns his own farm with stock to run it, and has plenty to live upen."

"That's a case out of the usual run, is it not?" asked a gentleman present.

"Well, I can hardly say. There seems to be a sense of honor and integrity in paying an obligation attached to the average farmer negro that is most panseworthy. I know last year a negro who was working on a place of mine below here, came into town and stammered around and told me his family needed some shoes and clothing, and he wanted me to stand for him. I knew the negro was indusmered around and told me his family needed some shoes and clothing, and he wanted me to stand for him. I knew the negro was industrious, so I gave him an order for six or seven dollars' worth of goods, and he went off happy. To tell the truth, I hardly expected to get it out of him, except through the overseer, but when cotton-selling time came he brought in his cotton and I sold it for him. When he came to get his share, I deducted my bill from it and handed him about one hundred and fifty dollars as his part.

"He took the money and looked at it and said, what yer gimme all dis yere money for?"

for?"
"I told him it was what was coming to him.
"'W'y. boss, said he, 'I never had dis much money 'fore in my life; jes' gimme 'bout er dollar an er half, an' put de balance up toll I call for it,' and with that he left the store, seeming stupefied with so much wealth. He had probably been working with somebody that had skunned him."
"There's one thing," remarked another gentleman, "I have tried all sorts of labor, and take him all in all the negro is the most tract-take him all in all the negro is the most tractable and rel able farm labor I can get. If he den't work I can make him do it, and by a little watching I can make him do it right. There isn't any theorizing or experimenting at his employer's expense, with the average darkor."

BUSTIAN'S GUT.

A Queer Locality Near Macon With An Uncouth Name.

Macon, Ga., October 4.—[Special.]—About three miles below Macon, between the line of the Southwestern and the Georgia Southern and Florida radroads, is a queer place, long known as Bustian's Gut, from an old settler named Bustian, who used to live there. In company with Mr. O. G. Sparks, Jr., your correspondent rode out there today.

The scenery is sublime. The roadway runs along on the verge of a steep declivity that descends almost perpendicularly a distance of sixty to seventy feet to the edge of the deuse swamp of the Ocmulgee river, which is here four or five miles in width. From the roadway one has an extensive sweep of miles and miles of swamp and canebrake. The tops of the trees are far below the level of the road, so that the highlands beyond the extensive swamp are in full view. This wooded cliff extends for several miles, gently curving around from south to east, and at the bottom there is an oozy run that follows the curvature all the way around. About four miles from Macon is the point where the Georga Southern crosses the gut and enters the swamp.

Of course, there is a high embankment at that point, reaching out into the swamp for several hundred feet to where it meets the frestling. Thousands of loads of earth and clay have been hauled in, and the bank is now wome twelve or thirteen feet high.

clay have been hauled in, and the bank is now tome twelve or thirteen feet high.

But the greatest thing is that this bank has sunk of its own weight ten or twelve feet into the boggy bottom of the gut, and on either side the shaky surface of the morass lass been raised outward and upward to a height of eight or ten feet. Yesterday it began sinking again, and today that portion of the embankment was three or four feet below the level.

Beyond the gut there its a little ridge of land somewhat higher and firmer, and this has not sunk. The trestling begins beyond this, and extends across the broader run, until it meets the long embankment that reaches up

Some of the hands are rather superstitious about the land sink, but they keep at work all

THE STATE FAIR. More Space Needed in the Fair Grounds—The Entertalnment of Visitors.

Entertalnment of Visitors.

Macon, Ga., October 4.—(Special.)—Today Superintendent Nisbit and Mayor Price visited the park for the purpose of providing more space for the state fair. What space is there, has been pretty well filled and there is an urgent demand for more room. Some measures will be adopted for accommodating all the exhibitors in a manner perfectly satisfactory.

The committee on entertainment of the visitors is moving in the matter of caring for those who come to visit the fair and there is no doubt that they will all be properly cared for. The feeding question has been practically settled, but the providing of shelter for the great throng has not been settled yet.

The needlework department, in charge of Dr. Carey, promises to be fuller than it has ever been before. Every day brings letters from all over the country, stating that the ladies will be here with fine samples of their skillful handiwork. Today a letter was received from Mrs. C. Sterne, of Athens, Ga., saying that she would be here with a fine display of needlework and other exhibits in that line.

Mrs. Langlis Martin, of Cape Girardeau, Mo., writes that she wishes to put on exhibition some of the finest specimens of needlework ever seen in the south. Mrs. Julia Starke, of Thomasville, will be here with her usual elegant exhibit of ladies' fancy work, including needlework and embroidery.

Mr. J. C. Weeling, of Columbus, Ohio, has lately purchased a place of Superintendent Nisbet, and he intends coming to the fair with an elegant display of blooded horses. His will be a valuable addition to the exhibits. Mr. J. M. Lofley, of Montezuma, Ga., will come and bring his family in a two-horse wagon. They will camp out during the fair, and have a real good, old-fashioned time of it.

Mr. Eneas S. Murphy, of Barnesville, will make a fine exhibit of horses and cattle.

Mrs. R. C. Paine, of Reynolds, Ga., will cuter for the premiums on fine needle work, and her display will be magnificent.

A. M. Gilmore, of Hawkinsville, will make a unique display. He will exhibit all sorts of tools and implements used in the gathering and manufacturing of turpentine and rosin. This will be one of the most interesting displays on the grounds.

This will be one of the most interesting displays on the grounds.

Ivey brothers, the woodmen, are getting ready to exhibit their new apparatus for sawing and splitting wood, the same that is now in use at their yards, and they will have a machine in active operation on the grounds.

The Excelsior manufacturing company, of St. Louis, Mo., will make a big display of manufactured goods.

The reunion feature is growing every day. The spirit of enthusiasm is growing stronger and stronger among the vet-

The Young Men's Veteran association is busy getting up badges and preparing floats, organizing companies and getting up the details of the parade and torchlight procession. Colonel C. M. Hodgkins, Macon; Captain John Milledge, Atlanta; Captain J. C. Simmons, Sparta; Captain J. C. Simmons, Sparta; Captain J. H. Adams, Eatonton; and Captains Walter Payne, L. Y. Matheson, G. W. Carneker, Milledgeville. This completes the staff officers, and a finer body of men cannot be found in the state for such an occannot be found in the state for such an oc

Letters continue to come in from all sections of the state from veterans and young mens' organizations, and there is no doubt that the reunion day will find the c'ty fuller of soldiers than it has been since 1865. They will all be looked after by the committees here and everything will be done to make the time pleasant.

THE MACON COUNCIL.

A Bridge to be Paluted Red When the Money Comes In.

Macox, Ga., October 4.—[Special.]—At the council meeting tonight, on Alderman O'Connell's motion to have the city bridge painted, Alderman Smith, of the committee on public property provided adversals on the ground. Alderman Smith, of the committee on public property, reported adversely, on the ground that the city had lately been called on to pay out so much that it is in no condition to have it done. The other members reported in favor of having it done as soon as there is money enough to spare, The matter was referred to the finance committee. It will be painted red.

Alderman Conner introduced a report in favor of canvas or tarpaulin covering, on the ground that the others were unsightly and dangerous, and that all prosperous cities had forbidden their exection. But reports were forbidden their erection. Both reports were received.

A large number of errors were reported in the numbering of the houses in the city. In accordance with provisions of the new ordinance the following young men were elected to the Mercer scholarships: John W. Burr, W. W. Cuyler, B. M. Zettler and Charles W. Hollifield. There are five scholarships, but only four applicants after the vacancles had been advertised in the papers.

SUPPOSED COUNTERFEITS.

They Are Arrested on Suspicion But Re-lleased.

Macon, Ga., October 4.—[Special.]—Last night W. D. Lassiter, D. H. Ballantyne, and another man, from Augusta, bound for Bir-mingham, stopped at a restaurant on Fourth mingham, stopped at a restaurant on Fourins street, kept by a negro named George Locke, and got supper. When they went to pay one of them gave the negro a dollar, which he sent across the street to Mrs. Harvey's to get changed. In a little while she sent the dollar changed. In a little while she sent the dollar back, claiming it was a counterfeit, whereupon Officers Daniel and Holmes were called upon to arrest Lassiter and Ballantyne, which they did. The men were held till this morning when their effects were searched and no evidence of criminalty was found. As it was apparent that the men passed the coin, if they passed it at all, perfectly innocently, Colonel Wiley ordered their release.

FOR FIFTEEN THOUSAND.

Miss McLean Brings Suit Against the City to Recover Damages.

Macon, Ga., October 4.—[Special.]—Miss M. A. McLean has brought suit against the mayor and city council of Macon for fifteen thousand dollars' damages. She bases her claim on injuries received by being tripped by an exposed iron pipe on Fouth, botween Walnut and Mulberry streets last April. It was at night, and the trip threw her heavily to the sidewalk, injuring her hip, shoulder and spine. From the effects of the hurt her limbs have been paralyzed, and she has been confined to her bed ever since, suffering much pain.

The case is a pretty strong one, and will prove a pointer to members of council in regard to the defective condition of our sidewalks.

Says About the Matter.

SAVANNAR, Ga., October 4.—[Special.]— Captain Williamson, the postal inspector, who is going over the books in the Savannah postoffice, is working night and day. He is stop-ping at the Marshall house, where he takes an rly breakfast, and goes down to the postoffic and sticks at a desk until late at night. He has a good deal of work to do yet before he gets through with his examination, and till he does, the real condition of affairs cannot be accurately told. Last night Captain Williamson slept with the vault keys in his room. Colonel Clifford W. Anderson, the assistant postmaster, has refused to surrender it to any one until the examination should be completed. He told the inspector that he would have to send him to jail before he could get the key. Cap-tain Williamson told Colonel Anderson that he must turn over the key or a deputy marshal

Postmaster Lamar says that there was no breech between himself and his assistant until Saturday night. The postmaster sent for an inspector because he says he thinks that an inspector ought to go through every office and look over the accounts at least once a year. Inspector Booth came down here and spent a couple of days, and when he went off sent Captain Williamson here to finish the job. Major Lamar states that he did not know that the accounts were confused until Mr. Booth so informed him. Policemen have the right to make arrests in the postoffice, if directed to by Postmaster Lamar to-day appointed Mr. Alston Waring, the former money order clerk, assistant postmaster. Mr. Richard Larcombe was promoted to the money order desk and Mr. C. N. Howard was made registry clerk, leaving the position of stamp clerk vacant.

Engineer Cris Farmer, runner on the way freight between Montgomery and Smithville, ran over some obstruction on the track, about 7:30, just before reaching Bronwood. He reversed his engine and went back to discover that the object was a negro, whose head had been crushed into an almost unrecognizable mass. The negro was evidently drunk, as flask of whisky was found near his body. The through freight, Engineer George McCutchens, from Montgomery to Albany, had passed just ahead of the way freight, and it is not definitely known which train killed the unfortunate inebriate, but it is supposed that the first train did the work.

Mr. Jewet, Captain Milikin's watchman at Race Pond, in Lowndes county, had the mis-fortune to take the life of a fellow man on the night of the 17th inst. It being so extremely dark, Mr. Jewet could not see anything, but ran to the corner where the object was first seen and fired his pistol twice in the direction the object went. At the last fire a man halloed out about eight or ten paces from him, "It is Scott; oh, I am dead!" Mr. Jewet went immediately and reported to Captain Millikin and others what he had done. They gathered up a crowd and went to the place and found B. F. About two weeks ago Mr. E. L. Trammell, of Auraria district, Lumpkin county, went down to the house of his daughter, Mrs. Molly Chapman, wife of Scott Chapman, and found her lying on a large box, seemingly sick. He inquired what was the matter, and she answered that her husband had pulled her from the bed the night before and stamped her until she was insensible. Mr. Trammell went back for his wife and others to go down, and when they arrived Mrs. Chapman was dead. When dressing her for burial they noticed bruised and black places on her neck and shoulders. Little was said of the matter and she was buried without an examination being made. Neighbors claim that the husband and wife have never gotten along amicably, and that several times he has ill-treated her. When she was found by Mr. Trammell lying on the box and when later on, found dead there was no one about the house but a little child. Her husband was no where about the place. about the place.

Beak Yancy was escorted by Marshal Abney yesterday afternoon from the west end of the upper river bridge to the lock-up in lower Girard, on a charge of disorderly conduct. During the night the prisoner managed to cut a hole in the floor of his cell with some sort of edged tool, supposed to have been furnished to him from the outside. This morning a warrant was taken out before Justice Tucker against Yancy for assault with intent to murder. The trouble arcse out of an assault made by Yancy on the person of George Venable, yesterday afternoon, near the upper river bridge, in which Venable received on his clothing several knife slashes at the hands of Yancy.

It will be remembered that Adams shot Buckelew some weeks ago, the cause of which was lew some weeks ago, the cause of which was the persistent attentions of the former to the latter's girl. Buckelew has threatened the life of both Adams and his daughter, and no one can surmise the ending of the matter. We are told, though, that Adams and his friends

A Cable Romance.
A sensational story was cabled from Vienna, the other day, concerning T beautiful Russian adventuress known all over Europe as "the Golden Hand." Just why the lady is called "the Golden Hand," does not very clearly appear, unless t is on account of her phenomenal success as a speculative operator in the matrimonial market. It appears that this remarkable woman, who, by the way, has been senteneed by the tribunal at Moscow to transportation for life to Siberia, has been married sixteen times. She married men of all nations and all creeds. As a rule her husbands were wealthy men, and it was her custom to run away from them carrying all the money and jewels that she could take with her. Years ago she was sent to Siberia for some offense, but she tried her arts upon the chief overseer of the prison with such success that he ran off with her to Constantinople, where they were married. With base ingratitude she deserted this man and returned to Russia, where she fell into the hands of the police. The lady speaks five languages fluently, and is said to be a highly accomplished and charming woman. While her circumstances have always been anything that she could desire, she seems to have found it impossible to resist the temptations of the criminal career which she has followed since she first budded into womanhood. It is quite likely that her sixteen busbands will hold a convention and see what can be done to make her sojourn in Siberia pleasant.

Bennett's Latest Venture.

The announcement of James Gordon Bennett's purpose to start a great daily in Paris to be called the European Herald is not altogether a surprise. For some years Mr. Bennett has been considering this or a similar project. His first idea was to establish a paper in London that would rival the Times in enterprise and influence, but the difficulties in the way appeared to be insurmountable.

It is too early to pass judgment upon the visdom of Mr. Bennett's latest venture, but if he is determined to establish a newspaper in one of the European capitals Paris doubt less offers a more inviting field than London. The English are thoroughly insular and their favorite style of journalism is the very opposite of the school in which Mr. Bennett has been trained. In Paris the popular journals of the day, while very inferior to ours in their news service, some what resemble their American contemporaries in their light, gossipy, sensational

The European Herald may be a failure, but its chances will certainly be better in Paris than they would be in London the venture succeeds it will be a signal illustration of the aggressive power of American brains, pluck and capital.

THE fact that Chicago is making pure leaf lard out of genuine cotton seed oil shows that we are in the midst of and contiguous to a great people. Let the good work go on.

Southern Banking Facilities.

The New Orleans Times-Democrat quotes ome interesting bank statistics from the Illustrated South, a new periodical issued from Nashville. In 1882 the capital of the 217 national banks in the south amounted to $45,593,670, the 257 state banks to $36,193,-989, beside 305 private banks of unknown capital. In 1887, 398 national banks in the south had $66,610,338 capital, and the 338 state banks $48,247,179 capital, beside 357 private banks. The incorporated banks increased in number in the five years from 474 to 735, and their capital increased from $81. 787,659 to $114,454,789. Private banks in the meantime increased in number from 305 to 307. Commenting on these figures, the Times-Democrat remarks:

It is the misfortune of the south to live under a na-tional system of banking currency which is adapted to the economic conditions of other sections of the union radically different in many important particulars. North of the Ohio the banking institutions and facilities are probably the most abundant and popular that can be found in any country of the world. It is an essential result of this situation that immense producing, mercantile and financial systems of those producing, mercantile and financial systems of those sections can be well accommodated with a comparatively moderate supply of current money, i. e., specie and circulating notes. This system of currency is adapted to such conditions, obtaining in those sections, and the south has to live under it through its banking and credit system on a quite correction scale being the moderate has found in opposite scale, being the most meager to be found in communities of such wealth in capital and production to be found anywhere in the progressive com-mercial nations of the world.

It is likewise the misfortune of the south -and here most of the trouble lies-that congress has lacked the foresight and the statesmanship to so modify the national banking law as to fit them to the demands and necessities of a period of peace. The law as it stands was framed to meet the exigencies of war. It was an admirable law for that purpose, but it is not an admirable law so far as the financial needs of the present are concerned.

It imposes a tax of ten per cent on the currency of state banks and prohibits loans on real estate. The result of this prohibition is very embarrassing to those who desire to borrow money, but who have nothing but real estate security to offer; for it is not every man, nor even every man out of one hundred, who is able to put up government bonds as collateral. Southern trade and southern industry are placed at a terrible disadvantage by this law, in fact they are

Our Dispute With Canada eretary Bayard has appointed the mer who are to act with him in the joint commission on the fisheries dispute. The English commissioners were appointed some time ago.

Some difficulty is apprehended by reason of the attitude of Sir John Macdonald, the premier of Canada, who will be the chief representative of England in the joint comission. Sir John has expressed very clearly his views as to the rights of the United States in relation to disputed fisheries. He takes the extreme British position and concedes nothing to our fishermen. His con struction of the treaty of 1818 would restrict the rights of American fishermen in Canadian ports to an extent that would not be accepted in this country as a satisfactory solution of the present misunderstanding. Mr. Chamberlain is believed to be more lib eral than Sir John in his construction of the treaty. Should the Canadian premier prove stubborn in the support of these views he has expressed on this question, Mr. Bayard and his associates on the commis sion will not be able to accomplish much. The average Englishman is hard to convince on any subject. And when you take an English politician and try to reason with him about the rights of his government : large supply of patience, as well as of logic, is necessary to the attainment of any degre of success. Nevertheless, we hope that Mr. Bayard may hold his own with the shrewd and dogmatic Canadian.

Defending the Anarchists.

There has been some rather sharp criticism passed upon the action of General Roger Pryor in undertaking the defense of the conlemned Chicago anarchists. This is wrong It is not fair toward General Pryor, and it is contrary to the spirit of our free institutions. Under our laws the most depraved criminal is guaranteed the right of legal defense by counsel. The court may appoint an attorney to represent any person accused of crime. It is one of the highest proofs of the justice of our courts that any man who may be indicted for any crime whatsoever is allowed a full and fair trial.

No one has a right to question the motives of General Pryor in making an effort to save the lives of the doomed anarchists. He has assumed this responsibility for reasons which are satisfactory to him, and he is acting on his own responsibility as an attorney at law. It will require very clear proof of the innocence of these men to save their lives. If General Pryor can adduce such proof they ought not to be hung. If he cannot establish the innocence of these men they will meet the fate which now seems inevitable. It will make their punishment all the more exemplary if every egal expedient is tried in vain in their be half. General Pryor's defense will in all probability be the means of proving more clearly than ever the guilt of his clients.

Signs and Symptoms.

It is curious how the mind wanders when it is turned loose in the woods. The other day something was said in these column about a mocking-bird toying with a flake of golden-rod. This was undoubtedly the product of a mind taking a half-holiday. It is the dandelion that gives its dainty plumes to the wind. But what is the difference, after all? When the midday sun, to the dog-days, begins to throw your shadow northward instead of dumping it in a little heap at your feet-when the buzzards fly high and the air is serene-nobody cares whether the golden-rod has plumes or no. A bare-footed boy, sunning himself in the warm grass, and eating chinquepins, is about as good a sign of the season as the wavfarer needs to have. It may not be an invigorating sign, but it is an unfailing one. The commonplace is terribly mixed up with the poetical in this life. There is a robustness about that not even the most fanciful can afford to ignore. To see a groundsquirrel flitting to his burrow with an acorn in his mouth is a very pretty symptom of the change from summer to fall, but it is not a more certain symptom than the spectacle of a group of children waddling along in the road with their faces and their frocks smeared with ripe persimmons.

To our minds, the last symptom is much the jucier of the two, belonging as it does to the mixed and multitudinous phenomena that result from the amalgamation of artlessness and appetite. The symptoms of change of which we have been speaking are not to be seen in the city, to be sure. Brick walls and paved streets are deaf and dumb. The citizen knows it is summer when he feels uncomfortable and sees the soda-water fountains in full blast; he knows it is fall when cold chills begin to run up his back and the restaurants hang out their fly-blown oyster signs; and he knows it is winter when the coal dealer's collector begins to pursue him. But this is the extent of his knowledge Stove-pipes, grates, brick walls, rickety payements and the puffing of locomotive are not very close to nature; but in Atlanta they are closer than some people suspect, for one has only to walk an hour in any direction to find himself in the very heart of nature, so to speak. Human Skins Used for Purses, Stippers and Other Things.

From the Philadelphia News.

I notice with surprise that there is consider I notice with surprise that there is considerable ado in Paris over the fact that two purses were made from pieces of the skin of the recently beheated murderer, Pranzini, and presented to police officials, who are threatened with ry moval in consequence thereof. I did not know that the French were over-squamish in such matters, and I certainly was not aware that we had advanced beyond them in the indifference with whole were the best of the present the best of the present the best of the present the pres in the indifference with which we view the hor ble. I am certain that all of you shucdered when you read how the crowd that surrounded the guillotine feught for opportunities to dabble their hand-kerchie's in the blood which had sparted from the control of the co Pranzini's headless trunk. That was simply dramatic ghastliness. But the more practical ghastli ness whereby the woman-slayer smarvelously white skin-whitch, it is said, 'ascinated his victims and lured them to their doom—was put to a better use than it had ever known teore, awakened. I am tainly in this city.

Pranzini's body was given over to the doctors, and when once we have made that disposition of a corpse, we don't bother ourselves about what becomes of it. We know in an indefinite sort of way that medical students hack at them in order to accustom themselves to a fike treatment of the liv-ing. We know that some of our fellow men have their bones seraped clean and then wired together, and forever after dangle in a doctor's close to r in a college class room. But of the meny other service-able uses to which some of our defunct brethien are put we know but little. I remember that two or ree years ago I incidentally referre I to a promi nent physician of this city wearing shees made from the skin of negroes. He still adheres to that cus-tom, insisting that the tanned hide of an African makes the most enduring and the most pliable leather known to man orand new pair of shoes. I looked at his foot wear as I always do—his pedal coverings have an irresist-ible faselnaf o 1 for me—and said with a smile. "It the down-trodden African still beneath your feet?" n the most matter-of-fact way and without the shadow of a smile he answered, "I suppo e you mean to inquire if I still wear shoes made of the skin of a negro. I certainly do, and I don't propose changing in that respect until I find a leather that is softer and will last longer and present a bet-ter appearance. I have no sentiment about this matter. Were I a southerner—in the American souse of that word—I night be accused of being ac-tuated by a race prejudice. But I am a foreigner by birth, although now an American citizen by nat-uralization. I fought in the rehellion, that the ralization. I fought in the rebellion that the blacks might be freed. I would use a white man's skin for the same purpose if it were sufficiently thick, and if any one had a desire to wear my epidermis upon his feet after I bave drawn my last oreath he has my ante-mortem permission."

The doctor's shoes always exhibit a peculiarly ising when I last saw him, emitted no creaking sound, and appeared as comfortable as though they had been worn a month. Their predecessors, he told me, had been in constant use for eight months. He obtains the skin from the bodies of negroes which have been dissected in one of our big medi-al colleges. The best leather is obtained from the highs. The soles are formed by placing several ayers of leather together. The skin is prepared by tanner at Womelsdorf, sixteen miles from Read ing. The shoes are fashioned by a French shoe-maker, of this city, who knew nothing of the true character of the leather, but who often wonders at its exquisite smoothness, and says that it excels the inest French caliskin.

Do not for a moment think that this doctor pre-ents an exceptional case of one who puts the hunan skin to a practical use. Medical students fre quently display a great variety of articles in which the skin or bones of some disacted mortal has been gruesomely utilized and in bursts of gener sity they netimes present these to their friends, who prize them highly. One of the dudest dudes in town ear-iles a match safe covered with a portion of the skin of a beautiful young woman who was found drowned in the Delaware river. It still retains its natural color. Another young man with whom I am ac-quainted carries a cigar case made of negro skin, a ghastly skull and cross bones appearing on one side in relief. One of the best known surgeons in this country, who resides in this city, has a beautiful instrument case entirely covered with leather made from an African's skin. A young society lady of of this city wears a beautiful pair of dark shippers, the remarkable lustrousness of whose leather inva-riably excites the admiration of her friends when they see them. The young doctor who presente them from a Turk in Alexandria and that he did not now what sort of leather they were made of, but to supposed it was the skin of some wild animal. As a matter of fact, the skin came from a negro eadayer which once was prope on a Jefferson colle Womelsdorf. The rosettes on the slipper deftly fashioned from the negro's kinky hair

You may think all this very ghastly and very dreadful, but, as the doctors say, it is nothing when rally become callous in such matters, and death loses for them many of its terrors; until, of course, they themselves have to look the grim monster in the face. I have seen young medical students who were most fastid ous in ordinary matters place their lighted cigars on the bare skin of the corps they were outing while they phered more closely a the artery they were studying, and when the exam ination was completed, pick up the weed and renew their smoking. And even in this matter of the utili zation of the human skin medical men have analysis ration of the human skin medical men have ancient precedent to guide them. In Falermo, Italy, the judges sit up on benches covered with the skins of malefactors who have been executed for offenses against the law. Can you imagine a spectacle more calculated to strike terror to the hearts of evil-doors?

SMITH'S SARCASM.

The State's Counsel Pays Attention to Senator Brown.

BRILLIANT ATTORNEY'S ACCURACY."

What was Developed in the Convict Inves-tigation Yesterday Before the Gover-nor and His Advisor,

There were several little matters that re-lieved the monotony and tedium of the convict investigation yesterday.

When the court opened Mr. Hoke Smith rose to make the second argument in behalf of the state. Senator Brown, District Attorney Hill and Colonel Albert Cox had spoken in bei half of the defense, and it was supposed that. Mr. Smith would devote his attention to the arguments of the defense. MR. SMITH'S SECOND SPEECH

In beginning, however, Mr. Smith declared that counsel for the defense, including the distinguished senator, had not touched his legal position—"not only my position, but that of the associate counsel, Judge Hillyer.

"The distinguished senator laid down the proposition that the act of 1876 created corporations, but he presented no argument in support of it. He cited no authority in suport of the view he took-he seemed satisfied that no anthority was necessary, the simple assertion on his part being all sufficient." Mr. Smith then went on to review his position, and only cited the argument made in support of the defense to show that his position had not been even assailed.

AN ALLUSION TO SENATOR BROWN.

Referring to Senator Brown, Mr. Smith said:
"But the distinguished senator says, 'suppose you return to the old system, you will have $500,000 to expend for permanent buildings,' etc. He pictures large sums of money being paid out for the support of convicts, and adds, 'the taxpayers will not bless the memory of those when they are out of office, who, in the exercise of a maudlin sympathy, transferred the burden of support from the shoulders of the felons, and placed it upon the shoulders of the lonest tax-paying masses of Georgia.' After this he proceeds to discuss the financiak advantages of the lease, and rejoices over the money Georgia has made from the use of her money Georgia has made from the money Georgia has made from the use of her criminals.

"While claiming no special ken as a prophet, I venture to say that few Georgians can be found willing to treat this great question of convict punishment so completely from the standpoint of gain, and possibly even the opinion of the distinguished senator is slightly warped by the ducats he himself has pocketed, and still wishes to pocket, from the system he supports. His imagination has overdrawn the expense, while he failed entirely to recognize the real law and facts of the case.

"But he at least can be credited with peculiar discernment, when he announced that the clamor against the lease came from a desire for a new deal caused by a boom in railroading. It is not strange that one, whose political action has been so free from suspicion, should prove so suspicious. But that no sleep may be lost upon this subject, let me assure your excellency that the "agitators" have no plans for the use of convicts on railroads. No, not even to rebuild the State road. It will not be recent

the use of convicts on railroads. No, not even to rebuild the State road. It will not be necessary. There is little fear that the senator will be allowed to substitute for the road as it

SEVERE WORDS FOR A LESSRE.

In commenting upon the effort of the defense to break down Houk's character, Mr. Smith showed that during the time he was locked out from the convicts he was received in Captain James's house. "Is it reasonable," he asked, "to believe that the man whose actions were so vile that he was compelled to be separated from the convicts by barred doors. separated from the convicts by barred doors, would be received into the family of the lessec? I simply ask this to show the manner of testimony against Houk, whose presence contaminated the female convicts, but who was an honored guest in the home of the lessee." IN REGARD TO JACKSON'S CHECK.

IN REGARD TO JACKSON'S CHECK.

In commenting upon the money paid by Jackson to James for his time and immunity from work, Mr. Smith was very severe upon Captain James, who was present. He declared that there was only one thing that could excuse James's conduct, and that was "pitiable gnorance." He stated that the investigation turn of the check.

Mr. Hill-"The check was returned long be-

Arr. And a ne cneck was returned long be-fore the investigation began."

Mr. Smith.—"It was not. The investiga-tion had been going on, for the committee had been appointed at the last session of the legis-lature."

A DISPUTE AS TO FACTS A DISPUTE AS TO FACTS.

For a few moments some cross firing took place between Mr. Smith and Mr. Hill, as to the time of the investigation. Mr. Smith declared he knew what he was talking about for the hard property in the large and heavy and the waster. the third large the knew what he had personal knowledge of what had been a history of the history of the had been a mistake. The brile-many said. "The brilliant attorney only interrupted, may it please your excellency, in order that he might might make a mistake. The brilliant attorney does not display that accuracy that characterized his utterances when he was solicitor-general of the circuit."

Mr. Smith concluded his argument at 11 o'clock, having spoken two hours. Captain Harry Jackson then arose in behalf of Colonel James M. Smith, and occupied the attention of the court until the hour for adjournment; at 1 o'clock.

CAPTAIN JACKSON'S SPEECH His argument was almost wholly a legal exnies to be corporations, and ably and masterly sustaining that view. His speech was highly complimented, and provoked the most favorable compent able comment.

Two more arguments remain to be heard—that of Judge Hopkins for the defense, and Judge Hillyer's for the state. It is possible that the case will be concluded today, at all events it will end by tomorrow night.

THE DECISION IN THE CASE.

It is not believed that the governor will make an immediate decision, but it is thought that he will take the matter under advisement for a day or two in order to give the attorney general time to review the legal aspect. No one has any idea as to the result of the case.

His house would be closed at twelve o'clock. Major Livingston Mims said that he would close his insurance office and would circulate a paper asking other insurance offices to close, and would do anything else in his power to promote the success of the opening day and of the exposition.

The Crowds Already Coming.

The Western and Atlantic road brought in fitty passengers from St. Louis on Monday night and as many more last night. The East Tennessee was doing quite as big a business, and the Georgia Pacific brought in a crowd. There is a cut in rates from St. Louis to five dollars for a ticket to Atlanta and return, good until October 24th, and hundreds of northwesterners who are coming to the exposition have taken advantage of this cut and come on a week earlier. The streets yesterday were full of strangers, and the sturdy northwestern type was familiar.

The Air-Line road yesterday morning brought in three car loads crowded, and last night's train of five coaches did not contain a vacant seat.

The Central road brought in yesterday and last night a large crowd of Floridians and south Georgia people.

Another large contingent of St. Louis people came in last night. In the party were some prominent society people of the Missouri towns near St. Louis.

The agents of various lines of railway! report an extraordinary demand for tickets. In Spartanburg and Greenville, S. C., a party is making up to come over next week. This party will, it is believed, reach 1,200 or 1,500.

Dan Speer has arranged his splendid residence on Peachtree to accommodate forty or fifty guests, and will have all his kinfolks and a number of his friends on hand. This is not an unusual case. There are scores of private residences in Atlanta that will have from twenty to fifty guests during the week, and scarcely any of them reach under a half dozen or so. TWO LONG RUNS.

Coaches Traveling Fifteen Hundred Miles Without Rest.

COLONEL CECIL GABBETT IN THE CITY, And is Preparing to Bring Big Crowds to the Exposition-Five Trains a Day-Other Notes.

Colonel Cecil Gabbett, general manager of the Atlanta and West Point railroad, was making schedule time with a porter house at Durand's last night, when a CONSTITUTION reporter entered and dropped into a chair at the same table. The general manager looked up, and with a pleasant smile, asked:

"Going to have a big crowd here during the exposition?"

"Everybody is coming, and you can safely say that the crowd will be big. Your road going to do anything?"

"Well, something. Atlanta always gets big crowds over the Atlanta and West Point, and this won't be any exception. I think we will bring as many people into the city as any other road. I am just now completing a schedule for the two weeks, and am going to put on five for the two weeks, and am going to put on five passenger trains per day."

"When?"

"We will begin Sunday. We will run a train from Montgomery, Selma, Enfaula, Opeika and Columbus, and then after they have arrived, send them back as far as is necessary to pick up local trade. All the trains will be put on fast schedules and none of them will reach the city later than one o'clock in the afternoon. Are people about the city going to decorate much?"

"Then I must arrange for the decoration of this depot. I think I shall hang two flags national colors, from the polls on top of the depot, cover the ends with red, white and blue, and then decorate the main entrance depot, cover the ends with red, white and blue, and then decorate the main entrance handsomely. How will that do?"

"Very nicely."
"But if you want to see decoration, you watch the train when we pull President Cleveland down to Montgomery."
"Why so?"
"Because it will be worth seeing and I am going to have his train leave here at five minutes after twelve o'clock at night and put him into Montgomery by eight o'clock. The train will follow our regular which leaves here at midnight. I sam going to have the engine will follow our regular which leaves here at midnight. I fam going to have the engine pulling the train covered with flags and flowers and I faint so certain that I wont get on the engine and take a hand in pulling that train. By the way do you know we will begin handling a long run car on the twenty-fifth inst?" "What's that?"

"A car which travels continuously fifteen

"What's that?"

"A car which travels continuously fifteen hundred miles. It is a sleeper, and runs from Washington to Galveston. We will take the car from the Richmond and Danville and carry it over our lines. Just think of fifteen hundred it over our lines. Just think of fifteen hundred miles. It's a long run and a car has a long time rolling. The schedule which we are arranging requires the car, from start to finish, to make twenty-five miles an hour. That's good time when you think of the stops made between Washington and Galveston. Do you know that we are handling a car which makes an eleven hundred and imety-five mile run? It is a Washington sleeper, too, and passes through Atlanta and Montgomery on its way to Dennison, Texas. It aint any short run itself. But watch out for the president strain," said the colonel, as he walked out of the dining hall.

To the Singers of Atlanta and Neighboring Cities.

A cordial invitation is extended to the singers of Atlanta and neighboring towns, especially members of choirs, to take part as a chorus in singing the "Dedication Hymn," written for the Piedmont exposition by Charles W. Hubner. It is intended to make this the great musical feature of the first day's programme. Mr. Sam Bradley, of this city, will be musical director. It is expected that a chorus of over one hundred trained voices will participate. All who wish to effer their services to make this occasion a brilliant success are requested to send in their names to Mr. Bradley at once, in order that the chorus may be organized and rehearsals be held without further delay. Members of the chorus will be entitled to free admission and transportation on the opening day to the exposition, and will be furnished with appropriate badges.

MINISTERS FOR PROHIBITION. The Atlanta Ministers Sign an Appeal for

The following appeal explains itself. Some of the ministers, whose names do not appear below, are out of the city.

We the ministers of the gospel in Atlanta, earn-We the ministers of the gospel in Atlanta, earnestly appeal to the citizens of Fulton county and this city to use their utmost efforts and influence to prevent the neturn of the barrooms to our county and city. We make this appeal because of the mainfold blessings that have come to our people as the result of prohibition. This is seed in the increased attendance upon cur public schools and churches, the elevation of public morals and the great number of good people who have sought homes among us because of our free-dom from the barroom curse. The eyes of all civilized people are upon us. This is a pivotal point. Prohibition in Fulton county is no longer a local question, but concerns the civilized world. G. B. Strickler, W. E. Glenn, E. The railroad commission was in session yes-erday. Commissioners Traumell and Erwin being The railroad commission was m session yesterday. Commissioners Traumell and Erwin being present,

A large amount of matter, not of sufficiently general interest to be mentioned, was disposed of,

A tariff of rates was prescribed for the Georgia Midhad and Gulf railroad company. The circular relating thereto will appear in tomorrow's Constitution.

The commissioners had intended to prescribe stee for the Covington and Macon saliroad com-

The railway officers in this city desire it to be understood that tickets cannot be had from Atlanta to St. Louis for $5. The excursion tickets at that extraordinary low figure are for the benefit of St. Louis people. They are on sale in $t. Louis at $5 each for the round trip and are good until the last part of October. Already several hundred people have taken advantage of this low rate. Emery's Fish Market, No. 15 Peachtree Street.

We received a call yesterday from Mr. Jenks, of the firm of Foote & Jenks, Jackson, Michigan. Mr. Jenks is here arranging his exhibit of perfumeries for the exposition, and from the reputation lie has, and from the superior line of perfumeries his firm manufactures, it is easy to predict that he will score a success. His "Linden Bloom" perfume is as fine as any imported from the old countries. It has the unqualified indorsement of Mrs. Cleveland, Mrs. Langtry, Emma Abbott, M'lle Rhea, and other prominent ladies of this and foreign countries. This firm imports all the materials for their goods and have built up a large business in every state in the union. Examine their exhibit at the exposition.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Feature the Speculative Movement in Grain and Produce.

Special to The Constitution.

CHICAGO, October 4.-The feeling In the wheat market this morning was rather more bullish, but little news of interest was developed and changes in prices were slight. Trading was mostly confined to small operators. Cables were firmer and accompanied with some small buying orders. The home panied with some shad bying orders. The hole market received some little strength from a rumor stating that an error had been made in Buffalo stocks which made the visible supply about 400,000 bushels too large. It was rumored that there had been some selling for northwest and a prominent local operator was reported as being a moderate local operator was reported as being a moderat buyer. The receipts in northwest were large, bu only fair at other points. Export clearings were also fair and a g. ol milling demand existed.

There was no special feature in the coin market, and it was the dullest day for many weeks. The oper i ug figures were not changed until about noon, when there was some local buying which caused little 'eter prices. The local stock was posted at 1,209,000 bushels of No. 2, a decrease for the week of 114,000 bushels. There was a fair demand for cash orn, and a local operator took quite a line at 428/60 which expired September 30th to October 50th, which will probably increase the receipts during the business done, but that was by sample. The regu-lar market was rather neglected, owing to specula-tive orders being light. Rather an easier feeling prevailed, and a slight shrinkage in values is shown doing in the market. Offerings were moderate on speculative account, and there was no particular demand from any source. Liberal receipts of hogs attracted some attention, and in a measure checked the inquiry for speculative articles. Prices were more favorable to buyers, though the reduction was slight. October and January met with the most favor. The inquiry on shipping account was fair, and offerings moderate with transactions at slightly reduced prices. Receipts of products were fair and shipments unusually heavy. Liverpool was easier in bacon. The eastern markets were quiet and easy.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Stocks as Reported at the New York Stock

NEW YORK, October 4,-The stock market today NEW YORK, October 4,—The stock market today was quiet but firm to strong from the opening almost to the cl.s., leaving prices generally a fraction above yesterday's figures. The temper of the street was quite boolish. Western Union was again a feature and was specially strong throughout, the belief that the telegraph deal is now near its final consumation, gaining ground rapidly. Dealings in the stock were attended by considerable excitement at times and the rise in price was very steady and without reaction of importance until the last hour. without reaction of importance until the last hour. Grangers came in for a large share of attention, and a comparatively small decrease in St. Paul earnings cau ed a revulsion of feeling in those stocks, and buying for both sides of account was freely indu'g d in. Lackawanna showed the most strength out-ide of the leaders, but none of the remainder were of special interest. The bears made a slight demonstrat on in the last hour and succeeded in closing the day somewhat off from the best figures. Prices at the opening were irregular, though the changes from yesterday's final figures were for one-eighth to There was fairly active trading during the first half hour and decided strength was developed, Western Union and St. Paul leading. The market soon became dull, but retained a firm tone throughout, subject only to small fluctuations until afternoon, when Northwestern led moderate reaction. Higher figures were attained in the last hour, however, when realizations again sagged the list off, but close was quiet and sleady to firm at near the best prices. The net result of the day's business is, that a great majority of stocks are fractionally high. Total sales 63,000 shares.

Green & Co., in their report on cotton futures today, say: With a good demand for spots at the south and moderate offer-ings of futures here, local shorts bought with consid-erable freedom at hardening rates. Shorts were omewhat stimulated to cover by anticipation of a poor bureau report, due next Monday. Liverpool was somewhat better on reduced and fractionally learer offering from the south. The close was firm on the absence of sellers, while buyers work also

NEW YORK, October 4.—[Special.]—From Hubbard, Price & Co., through John S Ernest: Foreign markets report the best tone received in many days, the demand for actual cotton showing up remarkably when it is considered that today is Manchester day, and the closing tone to futures has evidently been caused by the brokers returning from their morning trip to that market and buying tutures against their sales as spinners. The demand spoken of in the last report is reflected in the strength of the southern markets, due undoubdjedly to purchases for continental account. The Manchester Guardian of September 23 notes the absence of a stock of export yarns for the first time in three years. Guardian of September 23 notes the absence of a stock of export yarns for the first time in three years, and mentions also that spinners are under contract until December 1 and some to the middle of that month. Locally the market has been largely left to its own volition, the evident desire of the strongholders being to allow as much cotton to go away from the country as will, as these prices are not to place an embargo on this movement by rushing up values in New York. At the same time we think no faith has been lost in the future value of the staple, and we are strong believers in 9c cotton showing a profit eventually.

"But it is said that the lessees are pecuniarly interested in the welfare of the convict. The judicial circuits are grinding out convicts, and the lessees now have as many as they can manage. They get them in spite of themselves. The lessees are not as often at the camps as the state officers. President Brown says it is two and sometimes four months between his visits to Dade coal mines. There were 157 cases of sickness at the Augusta camp in June. Dr. Westmoreland went down and it was reduced to fifty-seven in July and thirteen in August. The negro whose leg was said to have been swollen, had turpentine put on his feet and told to git. He got, and has not been heard from.

I don't believe that a United States senator has any right to deal in convicts, so help me God. [Applanse.]

"It is against public policy. When I proposed to lease the park in Macon, the point was made that as mayor I could not lease it. I replied that the man with the money would get there Eli. [Laughter.] Attorney General Anderson was my lawyer. But Chief Justice Jackson read the Yazoo fraud in it. No wonder President Brown feels tender-footed on this subject. I would if I were he. Let him turn it over to the hands of a wicked man like Lowe. Let the next United States senahim turn it over to the hands of a wicked man like Lowe. HE RODE ON A PASS

That Belonged to a Member of the Legislature,

AND HE IS ARRESTED THEREFOR Crimes, and Other News Notes of Interest.

The special policeman at the East Tennes

Night before last, soon after the train left Brunswick, Conductor Dick Harris, who was in charge, went through the coaches collecting tickets. In the sleeping car he came upon a gentleman who handed him a pass. The conductor read the pass, and as is the custom, made a memoranda of it. It was issued to a member of the Georgia legislature but for some cause Conductor Harris suspected that the man holding it was not the one to whom it was issued, and under promise to return the ticket the next morning retained it. All during the night the conductor's mind was upon the ticket. He remembered having handled it before but could not recall the place. At Locust Grove, a member of the legislature whom Conductor, Harris knew, boarded the train, and approaching him, the conductor showed him the name upon the pass, asking: "Do you know him?"

"Of course I do," answered the member. The conductor then asked the member to walk through the sleeper and see if he was there. The gentleman did so and came back, saying that the member to whom the pass was issued was not in the coach. Conductor Harris, fully satisfied that he was being imposed upon, went to the passenger and, telling him frankly that he had some doubts, said:

"I'd like to ask you a few questions." ductor read the pass, and as is the custom,

"I don't intend to be catechised this way," answered the man warmly.

"Well, I shall keep this pass and turnit into the superintendent and ask you for your fare, $11.20."

The passenger asserted that he did not have the money, and immediately after the train reached the city the conductor caused his arrest. The passenger induced the officer to bring him into the city, where he secured the money and paid the fare.

SCHULER'S PERIL.

The Convict Throat Cutter on Trial for His

The murder trial in Judge Richard H. Clark's court yesterday did not excite much interest, there being not more than twenty visitors present.

Charles Schuler came into court early. He was dressed in a back coat and wore his convict striped pantaloons. He is very black, about twenty-six years old, and does not look like a murderer.

Judge Clark ascertained that he was without counsel, and appointed as his advocates Colonel Howell C. Exwin and Mr. I. H. Johnson, who cheerfully accepted the position assigned them, and performed their duty with as much spirit and ability as if they had been guaranteed a big fee.

There was some little delay in empaneling a jury. The defendant rejected 18 jurors; the state stood aside 4, and three were discarded for "cause."

The jury was finally made up of the followgument for the state, at the conclusion of which the court adjourned to meet at 9 o'clock this morning.

Cleveland, WHO STOP OVER FOR A DAY AND NIGHT

On Their Route to Atlanta to Visit On Great Exposition—The Reception at Columbia Theater.

Cricago, October 5.—The train bearing President Cleveland and wife puffed slowly into the Alton depot at 9 o'clock. There was a loud about from the crowd, a buzz then and choors as the distinguished pair walked across the platform to their carriage. A moment later the carriage door closed with a slam, the four spirited horses jumped as the whip circled over their heads, and the president was riding through the streets of Chicago. It was only a few minutes of seven this morning when the people commenced to stop at the depot where the president was expected to alight from his car.

At that hour there were two hundred men women, boys and girls standing around the lit-tic three-corned frame depot, which looked dis-mal in its coat of weather-beaten drab paint. Not a bit of decoration was visible for a block around the queer little depot, and not a vestige of color could be seen on the little building except a dirty drab, which protected the outside weatherboarding from the elements, and the big yellow letters which looked almost flashy in their bed of

CROWDING AROUND THE CARRIAGE,

As the presidential carriage came in view, a cheer went up from the masses that filled the streets as the carriage advanced, but the demeanor of the crowd at this part of the line of march was in striking contrast to the unceasing din of cheers that greeted the president further on. There was no muste until the procession got to Twenty-third street. The crowds did nothing but look at the president and Mrs. Cleveland. Close behind the president's carriage came the Milwankee Light Horse Squadron and Battery F., Fourth Artillery, United States Army. The crowd yelled itself hoarse cheering for the president. When the second division swung into line at the corner of Michigan avence and Twenty-third street, down Twenty-third, West Wabash avenue and Thirty-fifth street the people were packed as never before in the history of Chicago and on the tops of houses and in windows were crowds of eager faces, and from roois floated streamers, evidently improvised hurriedly for the occasion. Down at Twenty-second street, where the procession began, there was a repetition of the depot scene and a man might as well have attempted to walk through a brick wall as to force his way CROWDING AROUND THE CARRIAGE, and a man might as well have attempted to walk through a brick wall as to force his way into the midst of tais fence of men and wo-

Along the line of march the masses were noisy, though orderly, and for the most part kept the line of the curbs on either side, but ten thousand young Americans, from five to twenty years old, defied the cavalry, infantry, artillers and police, and broke through all tines and over all restraints; clung to carriages, and when driven from one, fastened themselves to another; dodged blows from the batons of police; ran around and even under the horses of the escort, and suffered everything, apparently, but death or mutilation rather than keep in line. It was thought that human possibilities in the way of exultant crowds had reached the culmination at St. Louis, but it was a matter of remark among the visitors, that in point of numbers, Chicago had gone beyond. Her demonstration seemed to the visitors to comprehend her entire population.

MRS. CLEVELAND FATIGUED.

MRS. CLEVELAND FATIGUED.

Mrs. Cleveland became fatigued and left the carriage at the Palmer house, being escorted directly to her rooms, where she rested quietly for several hours. Reports that she had been taken suddenly ill were circulated, but they were unfounded. Mrs. Cleveland was very tired, but nothing more serious.

When the president's carriage reached the auditoriam building, a signal was given and the revenue cutter, Michigan, which lay in the harbor just opposite with bunting flying from every point, fired a presidential salute of twenty-one guns. This was the signal to the crowd of 40,000 people to overrun the crossing and swarm like ants toward the stand in their tagerniess to see the president.

When the president alighted from his carriage and made his way to the stand he and a few officials with him were almost pushed over the railing by a mob of aldermen and ward politicians behind who engaged in an insane struggle for the front.

The procession moved slowly on, when suddenly there was a crash of timber, and half a hundred people who had squeezed themselves on the reporters tables, were precipitated to the platform in a bunch. No one was seriously injured, though the incident almost created a panic. The people behind heard the crash and began to rush away from the spot. Women screamed and a scene of confusion, lasting several minutes, followed.

In the meantime the president, who had been standing, hat in hand, grew pale from the exertion of keeping his place in the jam, and the mob behind was cleared back a trifle. In the street however, it was impossible to keep a clear space for the parade. Every moment it would be forced to stop for a time, while the police were forcing the crowds back. The regular troops got through all right, but the Second regiment was shut off for nearly five minutes. The Cleveland cavalry suffered a similar fate, but managed to squeeze through.
